

The New York Coalition for Adult Literacy (NYCAL) is comprised of teachers, managers, students, and allies from community-based organizations, advocacy groups, public libraries, colleges in the City University of New York, and Department of Education adult literacy programs across New York City. NYCAL seeks to create an adult literacy system that provides quality, comprehensive, and accessible educational services to current students and other adults who require it. NYCAL believes that being able to read and write, learn English, obtain a GED, and enter training and post secondary education are the rights of every New Yorker and the cornerstone to an equitable and just society.
